Dreams of Nature Aquarium

Photographer, Takashi Amano (1954-2015) had advocated the importance of environmental protection by taking photographs of pristine forests in Japan and tropical rain forests around the world. He is also known as the founder of "Nature Aquarium," which is an art to recreate an ecosystem in an aquarium. In this documentary program, our TV crew had captured his works for 7 years and recorded not only taking photos of pristine forests in his hometown, Niigata, but creating the 40-meter-long Nature Aquarium at the Oceanário de Lisboa, Portugal. What is the message he left us and the earth through all of his life? (The 2015 Award for Excellence of the Japan News Network Council)

Japan's Golden Road – from Sado's Gold Mines to the World –

On Sado Island in the Sea of Japan, there is a gold mine which had produced gold and silver for more than 400 years. The precious remnants of the mine and buildings have been preserved, and Niigata aims to have them inscribed on the World Heritage list. This program follows the trail of the Edo period gold coins and Sado gold coins that were spread around the world by the Dutch East India Company. These small gold coins go traveling from Japan to India, and all the way to the Netherlands!
